Lakeview

Community Profile

History

In the early 1800s, the Lakeview community consisted of large family owned farms. The Cawthra's, Cavins, Haigs, Duck and Shaw families all owned land in the area. The Cawthra-Elliott Estate remains a significant heritage site in the City of Mississauga.

In 1915, Curtiss Aeroplanes and Motors Ltd. established Canada's first aerodrome and flying school on the site where the Lakeview Generating Station is now located. Combat pilots could receive training in Canada for the first time, and the Royal Flying Corps, created in 1917, based their first flying units at the aerodrome. By 1923, over 300 people had settled into Lakeview with most of the new residents commuting to Toronto to work. During the Depression many unemployed people migrated to cheap land in the area, built homes and began subsistence farming on small plots. Also at this time facilities for national defence were constructed on the south side of Lakeshore Road.

By 1946 the area between Lakeshore Road and Lake Ontario was occupied by arsenals, rifle ranges and barracks for men stationed at the site. By 1950 Lakeview had transformed from a rural area into a suburban landscape with land used for industrial, residential, commercial and public spaces. New subdivisions were being built such as Orchard Heights and Applewood Acres. New businesses and industries, such as Dixie Mall, established as a result of the increasing population. In 1958 the Lakeview Generating Station was erected on the old Rifle Ranges land. Referred to as the "Four Sisters", the four tall smokestacks provided employment and electrical energy for the development of Toronto Township.

Today, Lakeview offers residential dwellings, shopping and community facilities, waterfront parks and employment opportunities.
