Community Profile

History

When the City of Mississauga was incorporated in 1974, its westerly boundary was extended to Ninth Line to include the area now known as Lisgar. The land use plan for Lisgar, consisting of various types of residential development, was approved in 1984. The first major development was a unique modular concept, in the area around Trelawny Circle and Tenth Line W. Each module consists of six detached dwellings, on oblique angled lots, fronting on a cul-de-sac off a typical road. Other more conventional residential development has occurred throughout the rest of the community. Lisgar is still experiencing development but will soon be fully developed.

Lisgar is named after the pioneer settlement that began around 1819 in the vicinity of the intersection of Derry Rd W and Winston Churchill Blvd. The settlement was originally dubbed "Switzer's Corners" because five Switzer families lived in the area and a number of the original community buildings were built on former Switzer family farmland. The community was officially named "Lisgar" in 1871 in honour of Sir John Young Lisgar, the Governor General of Canada. By this time Lisgar had a log school house, a church, a cemetery, an inn and a small store with a post office. Also nearby was a blacksmith shop and a train station was added around 1880. In 1868 the church congregation had moved to a new brick church opposite the cemetery and was named "Eden". The original church cemetery still exists at the southeast corner of Derry Rd W and Shelter Bay Rd. The log school built in 1823 was replaced in 1887 and served the community for 73 years.

None of the original buildings survive. The only other surviving reminder of the pioneer community is another cemetery. Kindree Cemetery, located on the south side of Derry Road W between Ninth and Tenth Lines, is the burial ground for the seven children of Nathan and Mary Kindree that died between 1829 and 1839. Five of the Kindree's twelve children survived and raised their own families in the area.
